Background:

Robert Volkman became a BC Forest Safety Council external auditor in December 2009. He is no stranger to the forest sector with more than thirty years in operations with a resource management focus, his experience ranges from development of high level plans to implementation of operations on the ground. He had roles in planning, engineering, silviculture, firefighting, and falling/logging supervision. He also has a background in the forest manufacturing sector and has worked or had dealings with sawmill, wood room, shake and shingle, and pulp mill operations. Refer to the link below for auditor stated experience:

For Robert, the dedication to a safer working environment came from the opportunity to fulfill a health & safety role at Daishowa-Marubeni International Ltd. Responsibilities included development & implementation of various certification programs (ISO 14001:2004, FORESTCARE, and CSA Z809-02); delivery of the company health and safety program including review of policy and procedures, and critical task analysis; delivery of training for company employees and contractors (up to 600 employees); development and implementation of emergency response plans.

To further enhance his skill set, he is continuing his professional development at Royal Roads University and has completed the Certificate of Environmental Practice program (Environmental Management Systems/Risk Assessment/Health & Safety) which fits in with being an external auditor and provides a better understanding of the health and safety field.

He believes that his audit, environmental, safety and resource management expertise, excellent communication skills, report writing abilities combined with successful implementation of various projects and professional training provide him with a solid background to deliver a wide range of health & safety services to the forest sector. Contact Robert directly if you would like to discuss services offered or to obtain a detailed resume outlining skills, experience, and training.
